Mas Healy, a dainty little soubrette, sings some catchy songs, and also pleases with her witty monologue.

The motion pictures are, as usual of the best, drams and comedy being well blended, with pleasing results.

BREED THEATER.

The Voice of the Violin, Feature Motion Picture.

Those who braved the very bad weather to see the fine bill at the Breed theater last evening were amply repaid for their efforts, if nothing more than to see the blograph feature. The than to see the blograph feature. The Voice of the Violin, a superb piece of pletorial photography. It is the story of a young violin virtuoso who falls in love with his pupil, a young heiress, but is rejected. He thereupon is influenced to join the anarchists and is selected to be the one to place the homb to destroy the monopolists. In this case it happens to be the father of the heiress with whom he has been in the helress with whom he has been in love. He finds out the true state of affairs and refuses to do the infamous affairs and refuses to do the infamous task, and another places the bomb, and when the violinist discovers it he rushes madly to the scene and in attempting to prevent the disaster is bound hand and foot, side of the burning fuse and succeeds in preventing the disaster cally by lifting the burning fuse in two just before the fire reaches the bomb. Many other feature pictures are shown and are most satisfactory.

THE MAN WHO DELIVERS THE RUBAL MAIL.

There's lots of jobs a chap can have baneath old Uncle Sam,
From serving in the army down to testing beef and ham;
Or being a department clerk down thay in Washington.
And working down in Panama, they hay, is lots of fun;
But when it comes to govern jobs a country chap can nall.
I'd rather be the carrier who serves the rural mail.

It's 10 o'clock each morning, or some-where thereabout.

When Juson White, the carrier, comes logging down his route;
His yellow sulky creaking loud behind his speckled mag.

And Juson husy sorting mail out of each leather bag;
A letter here, a paper there—his mem-ry must not fail.

I tell you what it takes a head to serve the rural mail.

It's fun to watch the folks come out when Jason's whistle blows.

And see him dealing out the mail as down the road he goes.

The catalogues and sample seeds and Down East magazines.

And postal tards from Eastport, Mains, clean to the Philippines.

Love letters for the love-sick gala, with town beaus on the trail—By gesh! there's lots of happiness and in the rural mail.

And once, when we were near the school, we heard young Jacon shoot.

And then we saw him balt his mag and cail the teacher out;
And when she asked him what he had, in such a pretty way.

He leaned way out and kissed here so he fare was red all day.

By hen! of all the government jobs a country chap can nail.

I'd rather he the carrier who serves the rural mail.

BACK HOME.

If I could go back to my home tonight,
Back to the long, low house when evening light
Just shadowed down to darkness—what would be My first glad act! The first thing, I would see Where mother was—go calling far and near Through every room, until she answered "Here"
Then I would turn so fast—I could not wait!
And I would cry: "Has father come?
It's late:
I want you both—I've something I must tell." (How well do I remember, oh, how well!)
Then father'd come, and, after tea, we'd Into the quiet room we used to know:
And I would tell them all—the joy, the gain.
Since I had seen them last—the greet,
the strain.
And mother'd kiss me and my father'd smile and say: "It will come right, just well a while."
And both would know—and all things would be right.
If I could go back to my home tenight.
